RUSSIA DELAYS PEACE MOVE.

HASNOT ANNOUNCED HER CHOICE OF ENVOYS.

WASHINGTON, June 25 .- Delay on the part of the Government at St. Petersburg in making its selections of peace plenipotentiaries to attend the Washington conference is now generally believed to be the cause of the present lull in the negotiations. The Japanese Government, it is pretty well understood, has decided on the personne of its peace mission, but has no intention of making the names of the members public until Russia sends in her selections to Presi-

The President will receive the names of the plenipotentiaries from each country and will serve as a medium of notification to the belligerents. It is not expected that there will be any objections on the part of either belligerent to the names suggested by the other. When the lists are approved President Roosevelt will make them public.

In Government circles and throughout the Diplomatic Corps it is now the general opinion that there will be no armistice until the plenipotentiaries get together. This will not occur for fully five weeks at least, and during the interim great events may occur in Manchuria. The Japanese Government has no intention of losing through an armistice the strategical advantages Field Marshal Oyama has apparently gained.

While the Japanese Government is thought to have fully completed its selections of plenipotentiaries, no announcemeat has been made of who they are. Kogoro Takahira, the Japanese Minister here, is probably one of the peacemakers. but there is no inkling as to who the others n'ay be. Marquis Ito, whose name was mentioned a week or two ago and who was believed to have been definitely decided on as the head of the Japanese side of the conference, is now thought to have been dropped from the considerations of the Tokio authorities. Baron Komura, the Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs. is believed by some officials here to be one of the selections.

No decision has been reached concerning the summer meeting place of the conference. A score of places have been mentioned, but actual discussion looking toward a final settlement of the question has not Leen

President Roosevelt to-night received Ambassador. The Ambassador came to Washington to-day from his summer place at Deer Park, Md. On leaving the White House he said that there was nothing new in the situation and that he and the President had merely gone over ground already

With the departure of President Roosevelt to-morrow for the remainder of the summer it is expected there will be few developments in the peace situation. RUSSIANS AGAIN DEFEATED. Retreat Cut Off for a Time and They Lose Heavily.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. Tokio, June 25.-An official despatch states that the enemy, holding an eminence northwest of Nanshanchentzu, were attacked and dislodged on the afternoon of June 22 but a portion of the enemy holding the hills to the west made a stubborn resistance. The position was finally taken by assault. The Japanese attacked another force holding the hills due north of their front.

At the same time a turning movement from the northeast was resorted to, by which the Russians' retreat was intercepted causing them heavy loss. The enemy was thrown into confusion and hoisted a red flag. This did not stop the Japanese fire. The Russians fled northward in dis-

The enemy's strength was 3.000 cavalry and infantry, with several guns. Their losses were fully 200. Fifty dead were counted on the field. The Japanese losses were insignificant.

LONDON. June 26 .- The Moscow correspondent of the Standard says that prayers for victory for the Russian arms were offered at noon on Sunday in the grand square opposite the Kremlin, in the presence of about 2,000 persons. There was a large gathering of ecclesiastics, and an imposing display of the most revered ikons, but it was impossible to believe in the sincerity of the populace. Many mocking remarks were heard such as 'Victory? We don't want victory." Before the service ended a large proportion of the gathering drifted away, attracted by the spectacle of a small fire in the neighborhood.

The fact is, nobody is really interested in the war. All minds are occupied with the question of internal reforms. For a majority the result of the war is a foregone conclusion. In higher circles there is less pessimism. There is reason to believe that large reenforcements are being hurried East in order to insure a firm stand in the Khingan Mountain range, the natural frontier on the west, where the Russians thoroughly established themselves five Press criticisms on the conduct of the war are increasing in severity. Otherwise the columns of the newspapers are about equally filled with reports of strikes and disorders in every part of the empire and of projects for a new constitution and electoral schemes.

A despatch to the Telegraph from Moji says that the Russians now concentrated north of Gujong, on the left bank of the Tumen River, number over 15,000 of all in the belief that thereby he could develop branches. They are busily engaged in a wheat that would survive droughts in the constructing strong defensive works, and apparently intend there to make their first resistance on the road to Vladivostok. Trains with munitions and supplies are arriving daily. The Amur River is also used for transport purposes. All provisions in the Ussuri district have been sent to Vladivcstok. The result is that the inhabitants of the district are suffering from famine. The Russians are also sending cattle, pigs, wheat, barley, &c., from the extreme north of Corea to Vladivostok, where everything possible is being done to strengthen the capabilities of resistance

The Tokio correspondent of the Telegraph says the latest estimate is that when Gen Linievitch took command of the Russian army he had 171,000 men. He has since received 135,000 reenforcements. Probably 50,000 men who were invalided have rejoined the army since the battle of Mukden. Over seventy guns have been received from Russia, making a total of 900. The troops round Changehun, who were less than 40,000, now number over 70,000.

Berlin, June 25. - Chancellor Von Buelow to-day received M. Bihourd, the French Ambassador. The press is again attempting to shift responsibility for the war panic to articles in the British press. The National Leitung solemnly reminds France that a conflict between Germany and France would not be decided by a Trafalgar, but on French or German battlefields.

LONDON, June 26.-The Berlin correspondent of the Daily Mail says it is noticeable that in the last twenty-four hours the newspapers, realizing the growing gravity of the situation between Germany and Baron Speck von Sternburg, the German France, have become very careful in their criticisms. The London correspondent of the Tageblatt says that Great Britain is stiffening M. Rouvier's back, though in responsible circles in England it is well known that Germany is determined upon a peaceful solution.

The Paris correspondent of the Times says that M. Rouvier's note has convinced everybody of the correct and legitimate policy of France in Morocco, not excepting Germany. Only in the case of the latter it is a case of a man convinced against his

The correspondent refers to rumors, apparently of a semi-official origin, that Germany is disposed to negotiate directly with the Sultan of Morocco. He proceeds: "That looks as if it were intended to put a little more pressure on the French Government, though I am inclined to believe there will be some more negotiating on the subject of the proposed conference. In any case, eventual direct negotiations between Germany and the Sultan will have to steer carefully clear of certain pet schemes of the Kaiser if the latter does

The correspondent notes that the general feeling in Paris is now more confident. He does not say more hopeful, because those best informed, while considering as aggravation of affairs improbable, think the outlook for the present is very unsettled not that the danger of war is imminent, but since the Kaiser's visit to Tangier the equilibrium of Europe has been upset, and there is no prospect that the talance of power will be speedily restored. The one consequence of the browleating of France that is now evident is the complete failure to divide

England and France VERSAILLES, June 25 .- M. Borteaux, Minister of War, speaking to-day at the celebration of the birthday of Gen. Hoche, said he wished to say nothing which could be taken as an allusion to the present time, and yet he continued: "Is there not something criminal in sowing fear and inspiring distrust? Thanks to the efforts of thirtyfive years our fighting material is of the best kind, our equipment is complete, and our officers can bear comparison with those of any nation in the world."

MISSING FROM SARANAC LAKE.

Baltimore Weman Disappeared From th Baker Cottage Saturday Night. SABANAC LAKE. N. Y., Jure 25 .- Miss Mary Rogers of Baltimore disappeared from her room in the Baker cottage some time between midnight and 5 o'clock this morn-

Miss Rogers was a patient here. She came here on May 30, accompanied by Willoughby Smith, also of Baltimore, who is her guardian and a trained nurse. She is said to have been suffering from a nervous disease. Miss Rogers left her room by way of the window, cutting out a screen of mosquito netting with a pair of scissors. According to her nurse she was dressed only in a light wrapper and was barefooted. Guides have searched the surrounding woods all day and a party of men have dragged the river for over a mile.

BALTIMORE, June 25 .- Miss Mary Rogers, who disappeared from Saranac, evading her nurse, is the daughter of Alexander Rogers of Leesburg, Va. The family is a very prominent one in Virginia and Maryland, the young lady, who is about 30 years of age, being a relative of the late Governor Bowie of Maryland.

She has been ill for about three years, her trouble finally resulting in tuberculosis When she learned this she became melancholy and it was decided to take her to Saranac. Willoughby N. Smith, the Baltimore lawyer who accompanied her to Saranac, with Miss Janney, a nurse, has been for years the legal adviser of the family and a very intimate friend and guardian of the young woman.

Negro. VINCENNES, Ind., June 25.-Four men were dangerously wounded and several others seriously injured in a collision between the whites and blacks at Lawrenceville. Ill., five miles west of this city, at 11 o'clock last night.

The carnival of the Chicago Amusement Company was in progress at Lawrenceville when an altercation between George Goins, a negro, and a white man occurred over the jostling of a little son of Goins in the crowd. Goins felled the white man, who rose and struck Goins in the face. Other white men came to his assistance and several colored men rallied around Goins.

Pistols were drawn and many shots were fired. For more than an hour the town was in the hands of a mob, City Marshal Combs being unable to preserve order. When the rioting ceased through the scattering of the negroes George Bell of Neals, Knox county, was found dangerously

YOUNG GILMARTIN DIVED INTO WATER 60 FEET DEEP.

Dived From Boat Far From Shore Crazed With Terror-He Nearly Drowned Companions Who Swam to His Aid-Tragedy Off Clasons Point.

John Gilmartin, 21 years old, cashier in broker's office at 24 Broad street and the son of Policeman Thomas Gilmartin of the Morrisania station, was drowned in the Sound yesterday off Clasons Point With him were Charles Kennedy, 22 years old, of 945 Jackson avenue, and James Murphy, 19 years old, son of Sergt. Murphy of the traffic squad. Murphy lives at 1120 Boston road and Gilmartin lived at 3 St. John's place, The Bronx.

They hired a boat at Clason's Point and started out for a row. Kennedy and Murphy had their bathing suits, intending to do their swimming from the rowboat. Gilmartin did not know how to swim, but he declared that he was going to learn. Kennedy and Murphy are good swimmers and they told Gilmartin they would take care of him in the water.

They thought the best way for Gilmartin o learn to swim was to dive into the water from the rowboat; they would stay near in the boat to advise him and get him in case of trouble. Gilmartin they say, fell in with this suggestion and he donned Kennedy's bathing suit. The boat at that time was about one-quarter of a mile off the Clasons Point beach and in sixty feet of water. Gilmartin was told to take a good deep dive and when he came up his companions would be near to help him. He followed instructions. When he dived he kicked the owboat away from him as he went under water and came up twenty or twenty-five yards away. He was in trouble when he got to the surface and he yelled for his friends. They rowed as hard as they could to him, but he went under the water again before they got to him.

They rowed as hard as they could to him, but he went under the water again before they got to him.

Kennedy peeled off his coat and shoes in a jiffy and went into the water. Gilmartin came up some distance away and kennedy was soon at his side. But Gilmartin was so far gone that he grabbed kennedy around the neck with a vise like grip so that kennedy could not swim. Kennedy tried to break his hold, but failed. Kennedy was in trouble then and he called to Murphy to help him.

Murphy went overboard and with the aid of Kennedy he succeeded in breaking Gilmartin's hold around Kennedy's neck. Gilmartin was frantic with fear and owing to his efforts to keep a hold on some one both his companions had to leave him. He disappeared, and Kennedy and Murphy dived after him, trying to get him again. They dived repeatedly, according to the people who watched them from the beach, but finally gave up trying to recover Gilmartin to save themselves. martin to save themselves

Both were pretty well exhausted by their efforts and shore was a quarter of a mile off. Their boat had drifted away. There on. Their boat had dritted away. There was nothing for them to do but to start for shore. They had not traveled half the distance when Kennedy said he was almost done for and that he could swim no further. Murphy held him afloat until both young men were dragged into a rowboat exhausted. They lay in the bottom of the boat until

The boy dived from the bow of the boat and swam around for a time. While he was in the middle of the ship channel he was taken with a cramp. He cried out to his brothers and they rowed as fast as they could to him. Benjamin, 18 years old, went overboard to save his brother but the boy disappeared from eight

Benjamin and David were almost distracted by the drowning of their brother. They went to the Canarsie police and begged them to recover the body. Two policemen were started out in a rowboat to grapple for it. The two brothers meantime began to bargain with some fishermen to try and find the body. The fishermen at first demanded $100 to find the body, but they finally compromised by agreeing to take $50 if they got it. They had not found the body up to a late hour last night.

DEATH IN THE WATER FOR THREE

Two Boys Perish Together in the Bay and a Swimmer Goes Down at Canarsie.

Two boys were drowned in the bay off Fifty-eighth street, Brooklyn, yesterday. They were Peter Martin, 17 years old, of 494 Fourth avenue, and Frank Shaughnessy, 16 years old, of 483 Fourth avenue, Brooklyn. They left their homes after dinner and hired a boat at the foot of Fiftyeighth street. After putting on bathing suits they rowed out from the shore and dived several times. Returning to the boat, Martin and Shaughnessy rested. They again stood up.

One suddenly tumbled into the water. His companion jumped in to rescue him. Soon they came to the surface. They had apparently been caught in an eddy and were whirled around several times, sinking and finally drowning.

A dozen young men swam out to assist them, but were too late. Life Guard Ernest Bergmann put out in a boat and tried hard to find the boys. Half an hour later he found Martin's body. He and several others kept up the search for the body of Shaughnessy, who is a brother of Patrolman Shaughnessy of the Fifth avenue station Samuel Wessenberg, 15 years old, and

MADMAN ON FIRE ESCAPE.

Cops, After a Struggle, Subdue Him There and Tie Him Up With a Rope.

Carl Schieman, a painter, 28 years old, who has been living for several weeks with the family of his brother-in-law. Gustav A. Schmidt at 1419 Myrtle avenue. Williamsburg, became violently insane yesterday and attacked his relatives.

His wife left him three months ago, taking along some of the household effects Schieman broke up housekeeping and went to his brother-in-law's home. He brooded over his wife's action and lately began to act queerly. A watch was kept over him and several times, it was said, his relatives frustrated his suicidal designs. With a knife and an unloaded revolver yesterday Schieman drove his brother-in-law's family into the street. Somebody telephoned to the Hamb avenue police station that an insane man was murdering people at 1419 Myrtle avenue and Capt. Becker sent half a dozen cops to

Before the cops got there Schieman had locked himself in his room and bar-ricaded the door. He threatened to kill the first person who entered. The smashed the door and Schieman, after ing the knife at the first cop who rushed into the room, jumped out on the fire escape.

All the policemen started after him.

The cops had a desperate tussle with Schieman on the fire escape. They finally overpowered him and tied him up with rope.

An ambulance was summoned from the German Hospital.

German Hospital On the way thither Schieman broke the rope. He was held down the rest of the way. He became so violent that he was removed to the observation ward of the Arch Falls With Twenty Girls. HOLYOKE, Mass., June 25.—Three girls were badly injured and seventeen more had narrow escapes from serious injury through the collapse of a wooden arch in Lyman street constructed for the St. Jean Baptiste street constructed for the St. Jean haptiste celebration. Twenty girls dressed in white had gathered at the arch to sing patriotic songs as the parade passed. An amateur photographer, struck by the pretty picture they presented, asked them to climb on the arch so that he might snap them.

The last girl had mounted the structure when it collarsed precipitating all to the when it collapsed, precipitating all to the
